Understanding Frontier's No-Show Policy

Frontier classifies any passenger who doesn't board a scheduled flight as a “no-show.” How this affects your ticket depends on the type of fare you purchased:

- Non-Refundable Tickets: Missing a flight typically means the value of the ticket is forfeited. However, you can usually apply that ticket's value toward a new flight by paying a rebooking fee plus any fare difference.
- Refundable Tickets: These tickets allow full refunds or easy rebooking without extra charges.
- Bundles (WORKS/Perks): Certain fare bundles may include flexibility perks, such as free rebooking or reduced fees.

For clarity about your specific ticket and options, call  [\[+1-877-622-0707\]](tel:+18776220707) to speak with a Frontier representative.

3. Confirm Fees and Fare Differences: Be ready to cover any difference between your original ticket and the new flight, plus any applicable rebooking fee.
4. Apply Travel Credit (if applicable): For non-refundable tickets, the unused ticket value may be applied as a travel credit toward a future flight.
