

Does Frontier Have a No-Show Policy?

Complete 2026 Guide

Frontier Airlines is one of the leading low-cost carriers in the U.S., known for its affordable fares and flexible travel options. However, like all airlines, it has strict rules regarding passengers who miss their flights. Understanding Frontier Airlines' no-show policy is essential to protect your travel investment, avoid ticket forfeiture, and maintain smooth travel plans.

1. Understanding the No-Show Concept

A no-show is when a passenger fails to check in or board their flight without notifying the airline. Even if you have a valid reservation, Frontier considers a passenger a no-show if you:

- Do not complete online or airport check-in on time
- Fail to arrive at your boarding gate by the scheduled time
- Do not cancel or reschedule the flight before departure

No-shows are treated seriously because they can disrupt airline operations and prevent other passengers from using available seats.

Tip: To avoid no-show penalties, it is recommended to always monitor your flight schedule and check in on time.

2. Frontier Check-In Deadlines and Requirements

Frontier has clearly defined deadlines that passengers must follow to avoid being classified as a no-show:

2.1 Online & Mobile Check-In

- Opens 24 hours before departure
- Must be completed to receive a boarding pass

2.2 Airport Check-In

- Must be done at least 60 minutes before domestic flights

- For international flights, check-in times may vary

2.3 Boarding Gate Arrival

- Arrive at least 20 minutes before departure
- Failure to arrive on time can trigger a no-show

Pro Tip: Always arrive early at the airport to avoid unexpected delays at security or boarding.

3. What Happens If You Are a No-Show?

If you miss a Frontier flight without prior notice:

- Ticket forfeiture: You may lose the value of your ticket entirely
- Cancellation of remaining flights: Any return or connecting flights in the same reservation may be automatically canceled
- Rebooking limitations: Frontier may allow rebooking, but fees and fare differences usually apply

4. No-Show Fees and Refunds

Frontier does not typically charge a separate no-show fee. Instead, the main consequence is forfeiting the ticket value. Refunds are possible under specific circumstances:

- Refundable tickets: Full or partial refunds may apply
- 24-hour risk-free cancellation: If booked at least seven days before departure, cancel within 24 hours for a full refund
- Travel insurance: May cover missed flights
